That is Mike Brescia (sounds like Bresha) from Western Securities. We are working with them on our the Stadium Shopping Centre ARP process and as far as I know things are going very well my staff (Paul Donker and Desmond Blik). The major issue is the University Heights Community Association is concerned about traffic and they would like to slow the process down and do more traffic analysis and they also are concerned with what the development would actually look like at the proposed density, so we are thinking of how to show precedent images or 3-d models without Western Securities having to go into too much detailed design.

Alderman Hodges seems to be supporting the Community Association at this point (i.e. slow it down and do more analysis), but all the other local communities and stakeholders are quite supportive of the project. I think a strategy discussion with you and Mac Logan and our key staff would be beneficial on how to manage Alderman Hodges.

Hope that helps.
